Say Hello to your very own book of Quotes

QuotationsBook

Quotes bookmarked by Anthony Liccione on QuotationsBook.com

“It is better to have God over your shoulder, than carry the world alone on your back.”

- Liccione, Anthony

“Imaginations are first where dreams begin.”

- Liccione, Anthony

“There will be people wishing to see the things you see, but can't. So the things they see physical is temporal, but the things shone spiritually is eternal.”

- Liccione, Anthony

Hate will only eat the truth, then spit out a lie.

- Liccione, Anthony

“It's not how many friends you can count, it's how many of those you can count on.”

- Liccione, Anthony

A writer is nothing without a reader; a reader is nothing without a writer.

- Liccione, Anthony

“Take caution of what lies, in what you may beLIEve.”

- Liccione, Anthony

“A mind is not weighed by its magnitude, but by the dimensions of its thoughts.”

- Liccione, Anthony

“As a child, I was afraid of the dark and the monsters on the outside.

As a man, I run away from the light, afraid to show the monsters within.”

- Liccione, Anthony

Two cents in the pocket, is better than no sense in the head.

- Liccione, Anthony

“Faith, is the road that goes straight past the gravel, and cloud-mesh dirt into a mirage, where still you believe to go straight, and when you finally catch up with it, it ends at a lake where you stretch your eyes across,

but unable to glimpse the other side-

so you jump in and swim, gliding each stroke with tiredness and swallow of water, you reach the end, put a hand out and pull yourself up on concrete, where the same road continues straight into another blue-white blur.”

- Liccione, Anthony

Simplicity is, as simple as you make it.

- Liccione, Anthony

Distrust is like a vicious fire that keeps going and going, even put out, it will reignite itself, devouring the good with the bad, and still feeding on empty.

- Liccione, Anthony

Don't live life like it's another day, but live life like it's your last day.

- Liccione, Anthony

Teeth aren't pearly, until you smile.

- Liccione, Anthony

If you're still believing, then you're almost there!

- Liccione, Anthony

The mirror will only lie, when you look at it through a mask.

- Liccione, Anthony

I have rubbed, knocked and brushed up against a thousand windows, trying to get an image.

- Liccione, Anthony

An arrogant man needs to humble himself as a boy, to be a gentleman.

- Liccione, Anthony

A good word will spread in the grapevine, bringing forth clusters of grapes and the benevolent of wine; a bad word will spread withering the vines, and choke the potential grapes.

- Liccione, Anthony

QuotationsBook