William Cowper was an 18th century British poet and philosopher.

Satan trembles when he sees the weakest saint upon their knees.

- Cowper, William

No wild enthusiast could rest, till half the world like him was possessed.

- Cowper, William

How much a dunce that has been sent to roam, excels a dunce that has been kept at home.

- Cowper, William

Fanaticism soberly defined, is the false fire of an over heated mind.

- Cowper, William

The man that hails you Tom or Jack, and proves by thumps upon your back how he esteems your merit, is such a friend, that one had need be very much his friend indeed to pardon or to bear it.

- Cowper, William

Glory, built on selfish principles, is shame and guilt.

- Cowper, William

Visitors are insatiable devourers of time, and fit only for those who, if they did not visit, would do nothing.

- Cowper, William

The darkest day, If you live till tomorrow will have past away.

- Cowper, William

The life of ease is a difficult pursuit.

- Cowper, William

Man disavows, and Deity disowns me: hell might afford my miseries a shelter; therefore hell keeps her ever-hungry mouths all bolted against me.

- Cowper, William

Knowledge, a rude unprofitable mass, the mere materials with which wisdom builds, till smoothed and squared and fitted to its place, does but encumber whom it seems to enrich. Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much; wisdom is humble that he knows no more.

- Cowper, William

Knowledge is proud that it knows so much; Wisdom is humble that it knows no more.

- Cowper, William

A life of ease is a difficult pursuit.

- Cowper, William

O, popular applause! what heart of man is proof against thy sweet, seducing charms?

- Cowper, William

God made the country and man made the town.

- Cowper, William

Nature is a good name for an effect whose cause is God.

- Cowper, William

A self-made man? Yes, and one who worships his creator.

- Cowper, William

It chills my blood to hear the blest Supreme rudely appealed to on each trifling theme.

- Cowper, William

Existence is a strange bargain. Life owes us little; we owe it everything. The only true happiness comes from squandering ourselves for a purpose.

- Cowper, William

Thus happiness depends, as nature shows, less on exterior things than most suppose.

- Cowper, William

Remorse, the fatal egg that pleasure laid.

- Cowper, William

Religion! what treasure untold resides in that heavenly word!

- Cowper, William

Remorse begets reform.

- Cowper, William

Absence of occupation is not rest; A mind quite vacant is a mind distressed.

- Cowper, William

No one was ever scolded out of their sins.

- Cowper, William

Forced from home, and all its pleasures, Africa coast I left forlorn; to increase a stranger's treasures, o the raging billows borne. Men from England bought and sold me, paid my price in paltry gold; but, though theirs they have enroll'd me, minds are never to be sold.

- Cowper, William

I pity them greatly, but I must be mum, for how could we do without sugar and rum?

- Cowper, William

Oh to have a lodge in some vast wilderness. Where rumors of oppression and deceit, of unsuccessful and successful wars may never reach me anymore.

- Cowper, William

The path of sorrow and that path alone, leads to a land where sorrow is unknown.

- Cowper, William

A fool must now and then be right, by chance.

- Cowper, William

Once more I would adopt the graver style -- a teacher should be sparing of his smile.

- Cowper, William

A fretful temper will divide the closest knot that may be tied, by ceaseless sharp corrosion;
a temper passionate and fierce may suddenly your joys disperse at one immense explosion.

- Cowper, William

Candid and generous and just. Boys care but little whom they trust. An error soon corrected -- for who but learns in riper years. That man, when smoothest he appears, is most to be suspected?

- Cowper, William

Ceremony leads her bigots forth, prepared to fight for shadows of no worth. While truths, on which eternal things depend, can hardly find a single friend.

- Cowper, William

Variety's the very spice of life, that gives it all its flavor.

- Cowper, William

A man renowned for repartee will seldom scruple to make free with friendship's finest feeling, will thrust a dagger at your breast, and say he wounded you in jest, by way of balm for healing.

- Cowper, William

Absence from whom we love is worse than death, and frustrates hope severer than despair.

- Cowper, William

Absence of proof is not proof of absence.

- Cowper, William

The parson knows enough who knows a Duke.

- Cowper, William

Man may dismiss compassion from his heart, but God never will.

- Cowper, William

The innocent seldom find an uncomfortable pillow.
