

Say Hello to your very own book of Quotes

QuotationsBook

Quotes by Ball, Hugo

from QuotationsBook.com

Hugo Ball (February 22, 1886 – September 14, 1927) was a German author and poet.

Everywhere, the ethical predicament of our time imposes itself with an urgency which suggests that even the question Have we anything to eat? will be answered not in material but in ethical terms.

- Ball, Hugo

We should burn all libraries and allow to remain only that which everyone knows by heart. A beautiful age of the legend would then begin.

- Ball, Hugo

The symbolic view of things is a consequence of long absorption in images. Is sign language the real language of Paradise?

- Ball, Hugo

QuotationsBook