The Right Honourable John Morley, 1st Viscount Morley of Blackburn, OM, PC (1838 - 1923) was a British Liberal statesman and writer.

Evolution is not a force but a process. Not a cause but a law.

- Morley, John

They are the guiding oracles which man has found out for himself in that great business of ours, of learning how to be, to do, to do without, and to depart.

- Morley, John

Literature, the most seductive, the most deceiving, the most dangerous of professions.

- Morley, John

Even good opinions are worth very little unless we hold them in the broad, intelligent, and spacious way.

- Morley, John

In politics the choice is constantly between two evils.

- Morley, John

A proverb is good sense brought to a point.

- Morley, John

The great business of life is to be, to do, to do without and to depart.

- Morley, John

He who hates vice hates men.

- Morley, John

They act as if they supposed that to be very sanguine about the general improvement of mankind is a virtue that relieves them from taking trouble about any improvement in particular.
