Quotes by Watson, Sir William

from QuotationsBook.com

Sir William Watson (1858 August 11, 1935), was an English poet, popular in his time for the political content of his verse. He was born at Burley, Wharfedale in Yorkshire.

His friends he loved. His direst earthly foes -- cats -- I believe he did but feign to hate. My hand will miss the insinuated nose, mine eyes the tail that wagg'd contempt at Fate.

- Watson, Sir William

And must I wholly banish hence these red and golden juices, and pay my vows to Abstinence, that pallidest of Muses?

- Watson, Sir William

Pain with the thousand teeth.

- Watson, Sir William

The thirst to know and understand, a large and liberal discontent.
