Quotes by Brando, Marlon

from QuotationsBook.com

Marlon Brando, Jr. (April 3, 1924 July 1, 2004) was an Oscar winning American actor who is widely regarded as one of the greatest film actors of the twentieth century. He brought the techniques of the Stanislavski System of 'method' acting to prominence in the films A Streetcar Named Desire and On the Waterfront, both directed by Elia Kazan in the early 1950s. His acting style, combined with his public persona as an outsider uninterested in the Hollywood of the early 1950s, had a profound effect on a generation of actors, including James Dean and Paul Newman, and later stars, including Robert De Niro and Al Pacino.

I have eyes like those of a dead pig.

- Brando, Marlon

The only reason I'm in Hollywood is that I don't have the moral courage to refuse the money.

- Brando, Marlon

To grasp the full significance of life is the actor's duty, to interpret it is his problem, and to express it his dedication.

- Brando, Marlon

Acting is the expression of a neurotic impulse. It's a bum's life. The principal benefit acting has afforded me is the money to pay for my psychoanalysis.

- Brando, Marlon

I don't mind that I'm fat. You still get the same money.

- Brando, Marlon

Privacy is not something that I'm merely entitled to, it's an absolute prerequisite.
