Quotes about Disciples

from QuotationsBook.com

Once the good man was dead, one wore his hat and another his sword as he had worn them, a third had himself barbered as he had, a fourth walked as he did, but the honest man that he was -- nobody any longer wanted to be that.

- Lichtenberg, Georg C.

Disciples be damned. It's not interesting. It's only the masters that matter. Those who create.

- Picasso, Pablo

Every great man nowadays has his disciples, and it is usually Judas who writes the biography.

- Wilde, Oscar
