

Say Hello to your very own book of Quotes

QuotationsBook

Quotes about Festivals

from QuotationsBook.com

There is nothing funny about Halloween. This sarcastic festival reflects, rather, an infernal demand for revenge by children on the adult world.

- Baudrillard, Jean

Washington's birthday is as close to a secular Christmas as any Christian country dare come this side of blasphemy.

- Cooke, Alistair

The red-letter days, now become, to all intents and purposes, dead-letter days.

- Lamb, Charles

It is at a fair that man can be drunk forever on liquor, love, or fights; at a fair that your front pocket can be picked by a trotting horse looking for sugar, and your hind pocket by a thief looking for his fortune.

- White, Elwyn Brooks

Seasons pursuing each other the indescribable crowd is gathered, it is the fourth of Seventh-month, (what salutes of cannon and small arms!)

- Whitman, Walt

QuotationsBook