Quotes by Katherine Graham from QuotationsBook.com

Katharine Meyer Graham (June 16, 1917 July 17, 2001) was the head of The Washington Post newspaper for more than two decades, overseeing its most famous period, the Watergate coverage that helped bring down President Richard Nixon. She has been widely described as one of the most powerful American women of the 20th century.

To love what you do and feel that it matters -- how could anything be more fun?
